

Airports need a quickly-implemented and scalable charging solution to support EA.

A charging solution should first be implemented at regional airports near large HUBs. Shorter distances between main distribution channels enable more trips on a single charge.

This is an extremely complicated subject and is only one of the factors to consider when building EA infrastructure.