

Electric aircraft offer a viable green alternative to traditional jet fuel

Widespread adoption of electric vehicles is well underway in everyday society. Several aircraft manufacturers are pioneering this technology for sustainable flights and hope to revolutionize the way we look at air travel.